- b. Collar patches (item 2) - The collar patches are used to indicate the service. No devices are worn on the collar patch. A dark blue patch indicates marine infantry; black, naval or army artillery; red, army infantry; green, border troops; and light blue, security troops.
- c. Shoulder boards - The shoulder boards have the same color scheme as the collar patches, except that naval units are outlined in white and security units are outlined in red. [redacted] rank designations [redacted] are similar to the Russians.
- d. Belt buckles (item 3) - All naval units, including marine infantry and artillery, wear an anchor on a square buckle of silver-colored metal.
- e. Color - The color of the Rumanian uniform described above is green. Although the style is the same as the Russian uniform, the Rumanian uniform is a lighter shade.
